

University Court

The Court is the University's governing body and is the legal persona of the University. The 'Duty Holders' responsibility in regard to Fire Scotland Act 2005 (s53) is, therefore, undertaken by them.

To ensure the University Court is effective in upholding fire safety management their responsibilities are devolved through heads of management units such as Schools and Departments, supported by various appointed roles and functions which are detailed in this section of the website.

As the University's governing body, University Court also has a key role in promoting and embracing fire safety matters within the University.